Greetings to the Curry College Class of 2007.

On behalf of your alma mater, please accept my warmest congratulations and best wishes upon achieving your Curry College degree, and becoming a member of the Curry College Alumni.

For the balance of your lives, you will always be linked with this great Institution. We have benefited from our relationship with you, and I am certain that your relationship with Curry will bring you many, many personal and professional benefits and advantages over the years.

As you periodically flip through this yearbook, and enjoy the many remembrances that process brings, please know that you are part of a strong and proud academic and alumni community.

I am particularly pleased that you have chosen to dedicate this years yearbook to Dr. David A. Fedo, who both joins you as a Curry College Alum this year as a member of the Class of 2007, and delivered our Commencement address. All of us have been fortunate that Dean Fedo served as the academic leader of our great Institution during your entire tenure as students. I know that he is thrilled to be a member of your class of 2007.

Best wishes to all of the members of the Class of 2007 for all of their undertakings. The future holds great things for you, and we're proud that you are Curry College alums!

Congratulations and good luck. Please come back and visit us on Campus many times.

Very truly yours,

Kenneth K. Quigley, Jr.

Yearbook Dedication

Dr. David A. Fedo

Academic Dean 1990-2007

The Senior Class and the Yearbook would like to join the Curry College community in recognizing Dr. David A. Fedo for his sustained contributions to the welfare and success of the Curry College community.

Dr. Fedo, retiring after 17 years of service as Academic Dean, was awarded an honorary Doctor of Education. Dean Fedo, who has seen thousands of Curry students receive their degrees, addressed this year's graduating class with heartfelt words about Curry.

Reciting a monologue from his role in a high school play in Minnesota called the Teahouse of the August Moon, Dr. Fedo concluded his remarks noting that, "for some of us our play at Curry is ending. But the drama of life continues, and Curry remains, vigorous and strong. You, as graduates, will leave with your many memories of this College, and so will I. I sincerely hope that you have loved Curry, as I do, and that as the years go by, what you have learned here, and the people you have known, will be a reservoir of knowledge and wisdom and strength. Your future, including your various beginnings and endings, will then surely become part of the rich legacy of Curry College."

In turn, the Class of 2007 would like to wish Dr. Fedo best wishes in his new journey.

Additionally, the class of 2007 would also like dedicate this yearbook to those who lost their lives and were affected by the tragedy at Virginia Tech this year.

A message from the Class President and the Co-Editor-in-Chief of the yearbook:
-Jeff Bodio-

The last four years went by fast, but out of those years we have made a lot of memories and friendships that will be there through a life time. I would like to say thank you for a memorable year. I wish you all the best of luck in the years to come and the future.

To the Class of 2007,

Be proud that you've not only learned the things that will help you contribute to the world, but you've also explored tough questions that will help make your life meaningful.

Remember, this is not only an end to a part of your life that you will always treasure, but it's the exciting beginning of a wonderful future that shines ahead.

Congratulations
Class of 2007

I will approach you cautiously
I've never danced with death before

I will stare you directly in the eye
Make you feel my presence even more

I will analyze your every move Always second-guessing, never taking chances

I will follow every step you take Especially the ones coming closer to me

I will ball my tiny hands into fists Pretending I'm stronger than I really am

I will keep you in my line of sight
For if I turn my back, you might just attack

I will clench my teeth and exhale deeply I'm not afraid, I'm still alive

I will summon my every ounce of courage Unaware of what I'm fully capable of doing

Because deep in my heart, I know I can
And I will
I will defeat you

For Kimberly-

by: Molly Howard

Your smile could light up a room, and your determination made me look up to you. You worked hard and played hard. You made life seem so amazing and so worthwhile. So why were you the one to go?

Now your presence is all around me. When I drive past the scene of your accident, all I can think about is that horrible night, that phone call and how much pain you must have been in. I saw your car on the news and couldn't believe it your basketball sneakers, the ones you were so excited about getting, were on the floor next to your feet.

You were such a beautiful girl,
such a hard-working person.
Black, white, or blue,
everyone was important to you.

Singing to music, going to parties together, watching you play basketball all gone in the blink of an eye. Its just not fair
I didn't get to say good-bye.

When I saw you two days before you died, you told me that you loved me and that we'd see each other soon.
Little did I know that the next time
I would see you in a casket.
It didn't even look like you.

They buried your body the next morning.
I threw a rose down on your casket, and that was the last time
I saw you, my roommate, my friend.

But I guess there is one positive outcome to this tragedy. Your up in heaven now with your daddy, the place you always wanted to be.
So good-bye, Kimberly. Ill see you around.
I love you and miss you.
Im out.

Writer's Block

by: Sara Letourneau

She swims
in an ink-black sea;
her arms flailing,
groping for her surroundings.
Her heavy body
sinks deeper and deeper,
as if shes falling into an endless abyss of misery.

She screams,
but no one answers.
She tries to think,
but too much is happening
all at once.
Shes lost,
misguided,
helpless.

Suddenly,
she finally grabs hold
of a jagged rock,
begins to pull herself
towards the surface.

Light
She closes in on that spot:
Violet, then navy, then sky blue,
then white.
Climbing,
struggling,
she pushes herself up.
Up, up, up,
driven by her inspiration,
the will to succeed.

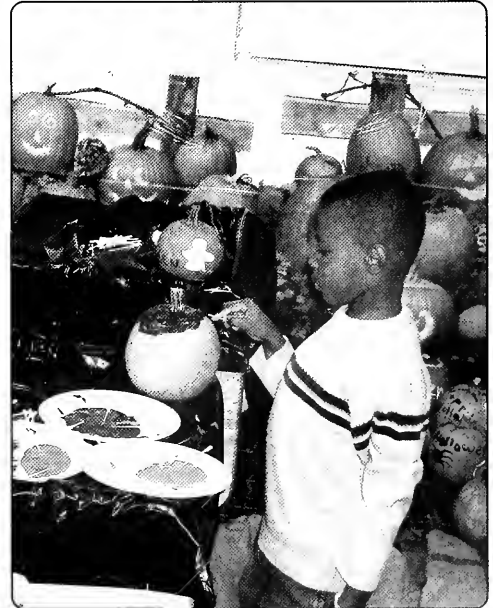

Splash!
Her head breaks the waters surface.
Air rushes through her mouth,
filling, reviving her lungs.
Her skin soaked,
emerging into freedom
from the dark nothingness that held her captive.

Now she can breathe.
She can live.
Now she can share her thoughts and tell her story.

You, the pajarita fragile with the sorely wounded heart
whom I hurt again and again as I struggled to find an answer to your hurt
from your first mama.

Yajaira the Smart, learning to read and write tu lengua
in six months!
How after four years
in your new pais,
two school,
and a new language,
you did as well as those who had been in school for eight!
Que inteligente!

Yajaira the Determined!
Starting college
two years after high school!
Leaving a year and a half later to have Gabriel Returning for a year, only to leave again for Natalia!
Making another life change
to marry your first love Renmato.
Returning with two children
Carramba!
for your final semsester.

Yajita,
Yajaira mi amor,
you are Amazing!

Congratulation!
Felicitaciones!

Yajaira Moore

Yajaira
the Amazing

You had such courage!
Selling flowers on the street
of the capital, the largest city, at the age of four.
Sleeping on the sidewalk
with only Rosibel
to protect you
and keep you warm.

Yajaira the Bold,
you ran away from patronado
and then ran away from home,
miles back to the patronado
at the age of ten.

Como pudistes survive leaving the so familiar the only familiar to come by yourself
with a stranger
to an all things foreign land, comida, language and snow.

Not with family like Brisa,
knowing no geography
devastated by the difference from mother, sisters and brother left behind.
Que courage!

Yajaira the Giving always thinking of someone else
you astound me
with your giving with your forgiving
all the grievous mistakes
I made as a parent

OH! THE PLACES YOU'LL GO!

You'll be on your way up!
You'll be seeing great sights!
You'll join the high fliers who soar to high heights.

You won't lag behind, because you'll have the speed.
You'll pass the whole gang and you'll soon take the lead Wherever you fly, you'll be best of the best.
Wherever you go, you will top all the rest.

Baby-
Congratulations my darling on an extraordinary accomplishment! Although it feels as if it was just yesterday when I watched you take your first step or brought you to your first day of school, it brings me great joy to see how you have grown into such a beautiful young woman. Words cannot express how incredibly proud I am of your achievements and the goals that you have accomplished so far. You bring all the joy in my life and even more as each day passes. Sarah, you are my best friend as we have seen the best, the worst, the saddest and the happiest times together, and through all this there is no one in the world I would have rather shared these moments with besides you. You brighten any room with your smile and bring laughter with your hilarious sense of humor. Life is just beginning for you and I cannot wait for it to open its doors into a world full of wonderful opportunities and success. I love you to the stars and back my baby.

Love always and forever,
